Name two things your program could do that would make the terrible number guesser less terrible. That is, what are some things the program could do that would make it more interesting to try to guess the number?

One thing that would make this program more interesting would be for the number guesser to give you two guesses and tell you if your first guess needs to be higher or lower or whether it was correct. Another thing you could add would be a way for the random number generator to check to see if the two numbers are the same without having the user compare them on their own and then keep a tally of how many times that they guessed the correct number.
